The Riva history

Riva is one of the oldest and most famous shipyards in the world. It was founded in 1842 in Sarnico, a small village in northern Italy, by Pietro Riva who, as a young boat builder, managed to repair some boats which had been damaged in a severe storm. Later he started to build boats of exceptional quality which helped to give the yard its first class reputation.

In 1921 Serafino Riva launched a racing boat with an outboard motor. This was the first boat to exceed a speed of 24 km per hour. The yard had a series of victories in both domestic as well as international races.

Together with the production of racing boats the yard built "pleasure boats" which exemplified high quality coupled with an abundance of luxury and elegance.

During the 1950's Carlo Riva continued the legacy of building wooden boats of exceptional quality and style. Riva as a brand became legendary all over the world. European royalty, princes, sultans, actors, sporting champions and other celebrities all had Riva boats as their first choice.
